CRAIN'S OFFONENT Special to the Gazette.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., Sept. 4 .- Th Republicans of the Seventh congresslonal district met together to-night after the adjournment of the convention and nominated Judge J. V. Spohn of La Salle te oppose Congressman Crain. Judge Spohn speaks very confidently of beating Crain, whose majority two years ago was reduced to 3000.

VERMONT POLITICS. Special to the Gazette.

MONTPELIER, Vr., Sept. 4 .- The Democrats of Vermont think the increased rate is due to their unqualified stand for tariff reform, high license, bailot reform and retrenchment in state expenses, questions that the farmers and laboring men are awakening to-the fact that tariff is tax, and that they have to pay that tax; that the eyes of the the Southern Democratic white man thinking men have been opened to a realization of tariff reform and they will vote with the party that favors such reform. Republicans claim that the decreased majority is due to the fact that this is an off year, that the party was in bad shape from the embittered canvass gubernatorial nomination and that the Republican votes for the state ticket were traded for Democratic votes for high-license Republican representatives. as up to to-day sixty-two Democratic representatives have been reported elected, with forty other towns to hear from. Such reason is not very good. The Democrats had only eighteen in the last legislature. Figures received to-day show a Republican majority of 14,000.

EANSAS REPUBLICANS. TOPEKA, KAN., Sept. 4 .- The Republican state convention was called to order at 10:30 this morning and immediately ceeded to ballot for treasurer. On the fifth ballot T. G. Glover was nominsted. The committee on resolutions then reported a long platform, of which the following is a synopsis: We are in favor of the principle of protection as expounded by the great leader of Repub-Hean thought and policy, Hon. James G. Blaine: we demand service pension and deep water on the gulf of Mexico; we indorse the administration of President Harrison and the official acts of Senators Ingalls and Plumb; we indorse prohibition, and recommend the passase of such additional acts as will make the prohibitory law more effective; we de-clare against the alien ownership of TOPEKA, KAN., Sept. 4 .-- The platform decinres as follows on the protection policy: We are in favor of the principle of protection, as expounded by the leader of Republican thought and policy, James G. Blaine, and its en-forcement to the extent of giving the American citizen an advantage over the grain producer, thus enabling him to maintain his industry and to make such fair profit as will induce others to embark in the same business, believing such policy increases the wages of labor, creates a good home market and results to the benefit of all classes. We want the same degree of protection to be given to agricultural products that is extended to all other interests. The commercial and industrial interests of the country demand a tariff whose maximum will not retard the growth of foreign trade or unnaturally stimulate prices at home, and whose minimum will afford all ample protection to every legitimate industry. A tariff beyond such maximum is legislation in the interest of a favored few, while a tariff below such minimum is legislation against labor. We believe it to be the best commercial policy of this country to cultivate most intimate, as well as most extended, commercial relations with our sister republics of the two American continents: and that it would be wise and expedient so to adjust our tariff laws so as to promote those relations, and at the same time adopt such legislative policy as will compel countries that exercise ican products to cease such hostllity . The state of Kansas, by reason of its geographical position and the character of its products, is favorably situated for the establishment of a great and remunerative trade with the neighboring republic of Mexico, and we favor the en-netment of laws for fostering and encouraging the exchange of the products of the two countries.

The same towns 1888 gave Dillingham 47,053; Shurtloff, 19,226, all others 1352. Only eleven towns are wanted to complete the total vote. The number of Democratic representatives elected as per returns is about sixty, or a gain or forty-two over 1888. MIISSISSIPPI CONSTITUTIONAL CONVEN TION. Jackson, Miss., Sept. 4 .- The constitutional convention was in session all day, and finally disposed of the penitentiary question by the adoption of a substitute for the committee report. It provides that no convicts shall ever be leased or hired by any person or corporations, public or private, after December 1, 1894, and that the legislature shall abandon the leasing system as soon as possible. The judicial committee, to whom was referred the question of authority of the convention to enact a constitution without submitting it to the people for ratification, also submitted its report. The committee expressed the opinion with confidence that the convention may constitutionally make a constituion or an amendment, which it shall adopt absolute and finally, without submitting the question of ratification or rejection to the qualified voters of the state.

SPEAKER REED WELCOMED AT HOME. PORTLAND, ME., Sept. 4 .- Speaker Reed was welcomed home this evening by a crowd of 3000 people, who packed the city hall half an hour before the time he was advertised to speak. Speaker Reed advanced on the arm of Mayor Melcher, and was greeted with a storm of cheers and waving of bats. State Representative John H. Fogg, from this city, presided, and presented Speaker Reed, who advanced to the front of the platform, and was received with prolonged applause, rising in a body to veloome the distinguished speaker.

Mr. Reed said: "Parties have their depressions and their years of exaltation, just as individuals have their moments of depression and good cheer. Parties have periods when they do great work, and periods when they seem to have no other hope than the mere

PRESERVATION OF THEIR EXISTENCE. Since 1874, when the Republican party first faltered in its great duty of preserving liberty and equality before the law for all citizens of the United States, a Republican house of Representatives has been rure. This has not been because there is no longer a Republican majority, because by frauds too apparent to be denied, by ballot box stuffing too notorious to be disputed twenty-five seats in the house have been wrestled from us under the and defiant declaration shall not only rule the black man of the South, but the white man of the North. Two years ago under the tremendous stress used in the battle set in array by free traders the Republicau party so signally

DEFEATED THE DEMOCRATS that even cries of fraud were ruled out of order, and after a few ineffectual struggles to count us out we had the house by a small majority of five instead of our real majority. "

The speaker then referred to the filibustering tactics, as he called them, of the Democrats of the house which had defeated his ruling a quorum. Continuing, he said: "Now the house of representatives is not a body quick to do business under any set of rules. large numbers and the diverse interests they represent will always make it slow and cumbersome. but the system which enabled one member to hold the whole house until the going down of the sun, and then hold it until physical exhaustion set it free, and one-fith to hold it forever, was evidently the system which rendered ELECTIONS USELESS and called a halt to civilization itself. field an army of orators to explain quesan election, itself that grand culmination of the power of the citizen, if after all nothing could be don. s without the sanction of the beaten party? What statesman could there be so foolish as to battle for power with responsibility when he could have the same power without responsibility? Are elections farces, and is the government of the people a juggle? So we marshall our tens of millions to the polls for sport? If there be anything in POPULAR GOVERNMENT

It means than whenever the people control of the house or senate that party shall have the power and responsibility. if this is not not the effect, what is the use of an election? It was for other ideas of public duty that the minority met us at the opening of the session. Not only were no measures to pass which did not have their approval, but no rules, even procedure, were to mitted except those which seemed suitable to the beaten party. So we begin life without any rules. constitution says the house may determine the rule of its proceedure, and does not say that it must. After two months' time the opposition found that under parliamentary law the public business was going on every day without their consent, and they began to clamor for the very rules they had denounced.

It is enough to say that good work was done, and the house of representatives has taken a large stride towards business. THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY. Will you, my old friends and neighbors, permit me just one word, which is purely personal? If at any time these last eight months I have been the subject of much indiscriminate praise, and much indiscriminate blame, one is just as much deserved as the other Great events do not turn upon one man. The house of representatives was ready and ripe for a change, and the people stood ready to approve of what all the world wanted and was easy to do. I am not greatly proud to be speaker of the house, but I am proud with all my heart to be one of that magnificent majority of the house of representatives of the Fifty-first congress, which for nine long months has never for one moment FALTERED IN ITS DUTY. The speaker then rehearsed the measures passed by the present house, the tariff bill, the force bill, the silver bill, He then spoke of the time lost by the house in organization, the calling of the roll, and in respect due to departed comrades. In regard to the latter, he said, one other cause of the loss of time will be a surprise, perhaps, to the community at large, man would regret more than I to be thought wanting in all proper respect for the dead, and all proper reverence for departed comrades. and for feelings of surviving friends; vet the method by which the house shows this respect and pays this reverence is very costly to the nation. since the election of the present house ten members have died and one senator. Among them which have been the most famous of the house was William D. Kelley, the great champion of protec-Samuel J. Raudall, heart of oak will of iron, the strongest in half the country; Samuel Sullivan, Cox, once a brilliant laborer. When we have paid due reverence and spoken the proper eulogy over these and their companions, not less than twenty-one working days will have to be counted. This means almost an ENTIRE MONTH OF TIME. When John Bright died the English house thought it could best honor his memory by going on with the business of the country.

In closing what I have to say, it would not be just to rest the claims of the house upon even the catalogue of its great deeds. What the house has shown the country is that what any house can do is worth a prince's ransom. Henceforth the promise cannot be excused except by its performancy. Henceforth great measures cannot be lost and nobody know what has become of them. The party responsibility has begun, and with it also the responsibility of the people, for they can no longer elect a Republican house without being sure that it will keep its pledges. If we have broken the precedents of a hundred years, we have set a precedent of another 100 years-nobler than the last, wherein responsibility will wait on power and wherein the people, with the full knowledge that their servants can act, will chose those will who worthily carry out their will.

A Banquet at which an invited Colored Ma, is Turned Away.

Special to the Gazette. SAN ANTONIO, TEX., Sept. 4 .- Repub. lican league No. 12 of this city, composed exclusively of whites, tendered a banquet to-night to the visiting Republicans. Several hundred invitations were sent out a week or more ago to the addresses of Republicans liable to attend the convention. Three or 400 responded to the invitation to-night. The eards read "Present this at the door, " and this implied injunction was strictly enforced. Only one colored brother, somehow or other got hold of an invitation. His name is Hancock, and he lives at Austin. Hancock proceeded to the banquet to-night under the escort of Col. J. C. DeGress of Austin. When the two men entered the ball somebody gave Brother Hancock to understand that he was not wanted there. At this Col. DeGress took umbrage, and the two left the hall together, in a huff. Col. A Saloon Difficulty in Which a Pistol Shot Was Fired.

It Took Effect, but no Death will Result-Seven Glasses of Beer-A Scene in Jail-The Story.

There was a shooting affray last evening about 6:30 o'clock in which Charley Williams got the contents of a 38-calibre Smith & Wesson revolver in the small of his back, the gun being in the hands of Thomas Winfrey, a bartender at Galioway's saloon on Main street between Eighth and Ninth.

Williams went into the saloon with several others and after taking a round of drinks a piece of silver was handed in payment. Dispute arose over the change, and presently beer glasses were flying in every direction. One of them cut a bad gash in the back of Williams' head, and then a bullet came after him and found the lower right side of his back, and ranging across under the skin lodged on the left side. He strode out of the saloon and came up town to have his head bandaged up. He didn't care so much about the wound in his back. When he emerged upon the street again he fell into the arms of Officers Ben Bell and Charley Neeley, and soon was given quarters in the county jail, whither the same officers had previously conveyed Thomas Winfrey.
About 7:30 o'clock a reporter visited the jail in company with the county physician, who went to look after the wound.

To the hospital department they went. "Hospital department" is an expression of courtesy merely, as the rooms devoted to that purpose possess no distinctive features except a couple of beds in

In one of those rooms were found the two principals in the affray. Charley Williams had bandages wound around his head. He is a laboring man of good intelligence. He is an employe of the electric company which is putting the city's new plant in. Tom Winfrey, the bold bartender who used his gun so skillfully, was considerably agitated over the affair, which he regretted very much. The surgeon began at once to probe for the bullet, and the reporter to probe for news. Tom Winfrey said: "There was quite a crowd of them come into the saloon, and a man named George set 'em up for all hands. He gave me $1 to pay for the drinks, and I handed him back fifty cents. But he said that he was not paying for one of the drinks, so I took back the half dollar and gave him ten cents. He said I still owed him fifty cents."

"You owed him sixty cents," interrupted Williams, who was undergoing tortures at the hands of the surgeon, but kept his ears open to hear the kind of story told by his enemy.
"Yes, 1 know I did," went on Winfrey, "and I gave it to him. As soon as the man mentioned it I noticed I had thoughtlessly picked up his half dollar, and I returned it to him. They all went out then except this man Williams. He stayed back and began to quarrel with me for trying to cheat his friend. " "I did nothing of the kind," again interrupted Williams. "You began to quarrel yourself." "We got hot at each other and a beer glass was thrown at me. I threw one in return and ---. " "You threw the first glass yourself," yelled Williams, who didn't appear to care so much about how the surgeon treated him as how the story was told. Winfrey didn't heed the interruntion but continued: "Then Williams picked up a glass and threw at me, smashing ne of the mirrors. With that I pulled

"Yes, and I'll get even with you for that, me honey, '' asserted Williams. "Were you drunk when you went into the saloon?" the reporter asked Will-

"Well, I'll tell you," he said confidentially, "I had just seven beers into me at the time, and that's the truth." Williams was allowed to return to his boarding house after his wound had been dressed. Winfrey will have trial this morning.
